From the Desk of Dr. Hall

Hello!

Happy spring! It's now official. We have entered the season of "new growth." And it is a beautiful thing to witness as I look out my office window and see the rolling hills and trees surrounding me becoming greener and more vibrant each day. It is an affirmation that every day is a period of growth, for nature and for us, filled with opportunities and endless possibilities.

As a physician, one of the most rewarding aspects of my practice is helping my patients to unearth the possibilities that already lie within them...to help them grow in new and meaningful ways and acquire true health.

On a wider scale, the World Homeopathy Awareness Organization is working to foster growth in public understanding of the benefits of homeopathic medicine by sponsoring World Homeopathy Awareness Week from April 10th to 16th. The beginning of this event, today, is timed to coincide with the April 10 birthday of Dr. Samuel Hahnemann, the founder of homeopathy. In support of this effort, I am including a link to a really interesting and important article by Dana Ullman, MPH about a Swiss governmental analysis of the medical and economic value of homeopathic medicine. Dana Ullman is one of the leading spokespersons for homeopathic medicine in the United States and has written a great deal on the subject. His article about the Swiss study was published on March 23 of this year by the Huffington Post and can be found at:

Ullman has written ten books about homeopathy, including the bestselling Everybody's Guide to Homeopathic Medicines (with Stephen Cummings); The Consumer's Guide to Homeopathy; and his most recent book, published in 2007, The Homeopathic Revolution: Why Famous People and Cultural Heroes Choose Homeopathy. I encourage you to check out these books and other works by Dana Ullman at Amazon, using the link below:

You may also be able to find some of his books at your local library.

Dr. Bob Hall

"Nothing in all my all my years of medical training made as big an impact on me as the "Wow!" effect of being helped by homeopathy. Once I experienced it firsthand, there was no turning back. I knew that I wanted to provide homeopathic treatment for my patients as a family physician. Offering anything else would be less than the best."

more I am fulfilling my calling as a physician, happily.

All the best,

Dr. Bob Hall

(World Homeopathy Awareness: Swiss Analysis of Homeopathic Health Care: April 2012)

"I can't remember a time when I didn't want to be a doctor. The doctors I knew as a very young child must have helped to plant the desire in me, when I was as young as age five or six. One homeopathic physician, Dr. Justice Gage Wright, was a great model." C. Everett Koop, MD, Surgeon General of the United States 1982-1989
